About the Company

GeoTerra Image is part of the GeoTerra Group of companies, with an office in South Africa and one in Portugal. The company has developed multiple online geospatial platforms, providing non-space users with easy to access industry-specific spatial intelligence from space-generated data. Our geospatial expertise are backed by extensive experience in a wide range of spatial intelligence fields, using the latest technology to analyse, maintain and report spatial data as a service.

The Technology

WaterSphere360 is a Digital Water Resource Management Platform, which provides monthly (real-time) water intelligence for further data analytics and decision making. This platform enables better management of water resources through ex-situ monitoring as an independent verification of the original water landscape. EkoSource Insights, specialising in hydrological modelling and water resource data analytics, is our development partner.

Our Capabilities

Our specialist team of full-time registered professional GIS practitioners and technicians takes an integrated approach to create solutions that assist industries such as agriculture, urban & regional planning, financial service providers, natural resource managers, forestry and conservation, mining impact and rehabilitation, telecommunication network planning, and market survey companies with spatial business intelligence for better decision making.

Desired Partners

We are looking for opportunities to scale up and demonstrate our satellite-based, remote water resource management technology, across South Africa and Kenya. We welcome downstream service partners to take the product into the market, focussing on climate and weather support services, other downstream applications such as early warning disaster support, and complimentary services such as IoT etc. Upstream partners would include high resolution satellite data providers for a higher-level monitoring capability.
